

This bulletin and the one discussing the influence of the soil type on the plant variety have been copiously reviewed in European agricultural literature and abstracted in English, French, and Italian. Copies have been requested direct from this office by farmers living in Egypt and Norway.

The fifth bulletin was issued as a supplement to the regular June Bulletin, and discusses corn culture in North Carolina, together with the results of our variety test work carried on in 1911.

The sixth and last bulletin issued by this Division discusses the recent progress in North Carolina agriculture, together with a brief discussion of the amount of food and feed products shipped into the State during 1911.

Respectfully submitted,

J. L. BURGESS,
State Agronomist.

RALEIGH, November 27, 1912.
